

IE University International Teaching Fellowship 2017/2018

The IE Humanities Centre at IE University invites applications for one year, renewable International Teaching Fellowships in the Humanities, beginning in the Fall 2017.

The International Teaching Fellowship is designed to assist recent doctoral students in their professional development by building a robust teaching portfolio, while at the same time affording them time and resources to pursue their own research. The Fellow will be join the IE Humanities Centre faculty at the equivalent rank of lecturer and be extended full academic benefits of the University.

The Fellow will be expected to contribute two courses, each taught to two groups, at IE University's campuses located in central Madrid and in nearby Segovia. In addition, the Fellow will be expected to contribute to the scholarly and academic life of the Centre.

The term of the appointment is September 1 – July 31 and offers a stipend of €40,000. It may be renewed for a second year.

The fellowship is open to candidates of all nationalities in any area of the Humanities who expect to receive their PhD by the time of the appointment or who have already received their PhD within two years of the application deadline.

The Fellow must have strong English language skills and have no legal impediments to obtaining a Spanish residency visa. (For non-EU citizens, IE University will assist Fellows in the process of obtaining the necessary residency and work permits.) Spanish language skills are NOT required for consideration. Fellows who do not speak Spanish are eligible for subsidised language training.

Applicants will be covered by the state benefits scheme, including health insurance, applicable to all Spanish residents.

To be considered for the fellowship, please submit a preliminary application consisting of:

- A cover letter stating the applicant's academic field, the status and brief description of their dissertation (including expected completion date if applicable), near-term research plans, and teaching interests and pedagogical approach. Cover letters should not exceed 2500 words.
- A current CV
- A short sample or actual syllabus of a course they have designed.
- One letter of recommendation from their Thesis Director or a scholar familiar with their research and, where possible, teaching abilities.

Applications and enquiries should be submitted by email to: ITF@ie.edu

Finalists for the fellowship will be notified in January 2017 and asked to provide additional material in support of their application.

Review of applications will begin in November, and applicants are encouraged to submit their preliminary application by then. The deadline for application is December 5.
